Defense Confident.

Defense attorneys are as confident as Hauptmann himself that he will withstand Wilentz's fiercest onset, and the suggestion has even been made that if he keeps cool he may cause Wilenta to lose his temper or tire himself out.

Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly said he would produce in court a surprise witness to support Hauptmann's alibi that he was in the Bronx on the night of March 1, 1932, when he Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

On that night Hauptmann has testified he called for his wife, Anne, it the bakery where she was employed, and with time on his hands took he owner's police dog for a walk.

He said his acrid criticism was based on the fact that although his bonus bill twice before this session had passed the house, Legion leaders had stepped in this session to prepare, and have introduced, a new Continued in Page 4. Column 7.

"There appears to be no plausible justification for the superholding company."

The commission said the acts and abuses by holding companies were too vicious' to recite in detail, but would require a special appendix.

"It is not easy to choose words which will adequately characterize various ethical aspects of the situation without an appearance of undus severity," the commission said.

"Nevertheless the use of words such as fraud, deceit, misrepresentation, dishonesty, breach of trust and oppression are the only suitable terms to apply if one seeks to form an ethical judgment on many practices which have taken sums beyond calculation from the rate-paying and investing public."

The commission said it primarily recommended either taxation or direct prohibitive legislation to bring about whatever ends congress chooses. Taxation to restrict holding companies has been sciously discussed at the White House.

Chairman Raybarn, of the house interstate commerce committee, however, said yesterday there was disagreement as to the final form of holding companies to pay annual levies which would be graduated sharply upward. This might eliminate superholding companies, since levies on underlying companies would leave little income for the giant at the top.

Was Pioneer Box Manufacturer; Rites Tuesday

Thomas Jetierson Hightower Jr., prominent Atlanta manufacturer and businessman, died Sunday morning at his residence at 2652 Peachtree road at the age of 75.

He had been in ill health for some time, and had been retired from active business since 1931. His death was caused by heart trouble.

Mr. Hightower was formerly president of the Hightower Box and Tank Company here, and was the pioneer box manufacturer in the city.

He was born and reared in Atlanta and received his early education in the public schools of the city. He graduated at the Virginia Military Institute and was a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity while in college. He was active in the affairs of the All Saints' Epffeopal church here.

NEGRO SENT HOME TO RAISE $50 FINE IN MORE TROUBLE

James Clark, negro, was muttering things in Fulton tower Sunday afternoon. Trouble, he mused, seemed to be dogging him with a vengeance.

When Clark pleaded guilty before visiting Judge B. C. Gardner on a lottery charge last week, he was fined $50 and given a sentence of 12 months on probation. The judge allowed him to go home to get the money to pay the fine.

Bent on straightening out his account with the state, Clark went to his home and found trouble in the presence there of another negro, C. H. Bates, whom Clark fervently disliked, he told police. He disliked Bates so genuinely that he took a shot or two at him, police said, and was returned to Fulton tower, from where he recently had been released. A charge of assault with intent to murder was placed against him.

Custom has decreed that carving roast or steak falls to the lot of the man of the house, but many a man has pushed aside custom with the flattering excuse, "But you do it so much better, my dear." And yet I have found that men who really can carve, are quite keen about doing it. If you are one of those wives who has been doing both cooking and carving, why not encourage your husband to take over the job? Today and on one other day I am going to discuss some of the fundamentals and some of the fine points of the gentle art of carving. I shall leave it to your ingenuity to get the facts across to father.

Always Carve Across Grain.

With the exception of steak, all meat should be carved across the grain. This makes for attractive, even sized portions. There is economy in good carving for a roast "goes farther" when it is expertly carved.

Carving a Rib Roast.

A standing rib roast which is easily prepared is also easily carved. The roast is placed on the platter with the ribs at the carver's left. If there are frills on the ribs they serve as a decoration and will be much appreciated by the one who is doing the carving, for he may wish to hold the uppermost rib in his left hand to steady the roast as he cuts it.

FAIR TO STATE BANKS

In Justice to Georgia's state banks the legislature should enact a bill which amends present restrictions on the making of bank loans with real estate as the security. Under present conditions national banks enjoy a practical monopoly of government insured loans of this character, though there are many excellent banks under the state department of banking keenly desirous of using this ideal form of investment for their idle funds.

There can be no sound objection long year." to the amendment inasmuch as it does not interfere with the wise for several years been seeking to develop a new type of wheat that would produce more grain to the amendment applies only to loans made with the guarantee of the federal housing administration for repayment—in other words, loans payment—in other words, loans the seeking to develop a new type of wheat that would produce more grain to the sing?" "WAR WAS NEVER LIKE THIS"

The apathy of the American people to the staggering toll being taken each year in automobile accidents is attributable to a "public state of mind that is beginning to bear a striking and startling resemblance to the hysteria which put the 18th amendment into the constitution," in the opinion of Russell Holt Peters, widely known American writer.

In the current issue of the Forum he points out that "learning nothing from our prohibition experiments, we are doing a slovenly lob" in enforcing the laws enacted for the safety of life and property on the thoroughfares of the country. He takes the position that, as in the case of prohibition, too-strict laws to insure highway safety are defeating the end for which they have been enacted.

In suggesting that we are falling into the error of too great legal harshness in the effort to reduce motor car accidents, the writer does not minimize the tragic losses from this source. He points out thatthe traffic death toll for 1934 will run around 36,000 when the figures are all in. Ten years ago 21,628 died in traffic accidents. Since then, with only one interruption, the number of dead has steadily increased until, at the end of 10 years, you find nearly 300,000 persons have been killed bejured, but you will get some idea when you know that the number hurt in 1984 stands at 1.000.000. Put the 10-year total at around 10,000,000 ind you won't be far wrong. War was never like this. In 10 years we have killed with our automobiles about six times as many Americans as the battle casualties of the American expeditionary force. In fact you can add together the American death toll of every war in which this nation has been engaged, including the Civil War, and the automobile in 10 years is still the greatest manmade killer we have ever known.

The fatal combination that makes notoring the most dangerous sport we know is designated by Mr. Peters as "speed-crazed motorists, badmannered motorists, careless pedestrians." These, plus the drunken driver, are responsible for most of the hundreds of thousands of accidents in the country during each year.

The suggestion that these violators of the traffic laws may by fewer laws and better enforcement be brought to a greater realization of the necessity for caution in the use of the public thoroughfares is an interesting contribution to the nation-wide discussion aroused by Tokens and Portents. the publication of the new high record of losses in 1934.

It is in line with the suggestion ecently advanced by the FERA traffic survey in Atlanta and is undoubtedly worthy of serious consideration by both law-making bodies and law-enforcement officers.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The Devil in Savigny.

Possessing my soul in patience her in Tunis until the members of the ethnographic expedition into the African interior have all arrived, they are three weeks overdue now, I must tell you something that occurred to me few months ago prior to setting out for Africa. I drove out to the vil-lage of Savigny-le-Vieux, which is sit-uated on the extremity of the depart-ment of the Pas de Calais in France. This village, old and hoary, which was antique even in the days when Wil-liam the Conqueror started out for England, is perpetually wrapped in the fogs and mists which drift over the English Channel.

the English Channel.

I went there because as a reporting member of a psychic society, I had to investigate a rumor of supernatural happenings there. These happenings were as follows: People going into the meadows were pelted with stones and rocks and lumps of clay without anybody ever catching sight of the authors of these depradations. You will admit that it is a most disconcerting experience when you are struck certing experience when you are struck with a stone on the head or on your foot even, and you can't discover who threw that stone. Well, that was hap-pening to several men and women in Savigny and not only once but re-peatedly.

Other mysterious things had happened I was told when I arrived. For instance, one man told me that the cattle of Savigny were all bewitched, further that the bells in the churchtower had started to ring on at least three occasions in the middle of the night. Yet the door of the tower had been solidly locked on those occasions and the bellringer, who had run hastily to investigate, could not even discover any motion in the ropes, although he heard the bells boom up on top in the loft. Then there had been some mysterious deaths. Young people had died suddenly without any apparent reason. I was told that a young girl, Mademoiselle Colas, the servant at the mayor's house, was reservant at the mayor's house, was re-sponsible for it all. She was a witch. In another age that girl would have been executed, I dare say, and there are even today some citizens who advised the mayor and his wife to get rid of that girl at once, lest the whole community be smitten with the evil

One of the interesting things around One of the interesting unings around Savigny was an old ruined abbey. On stormy nights. I was told, and it always storms in this part of the world during the winter months, you can hear the chant of the monkish ghosts in that abbey. "Did you ever hear

Under the state banking law a bank is not permitted to make loans on real estate above 50 per cent of the assessed valuation of the property offered as security. This is a wise restriction for the usual real estate loan.

The development of a similar free-bearing wheat in America would revolutionize agricultural conditions in the great granary states of the west. To avoid disastrous surpluses, hundreds of thousands of acres would have to be either abandoned or else planted in other crops.

ceived the detailed plan for his works program from his experts. Nothing has been sald about it, and probably nothing will be, because congress is itching to see it and it would be improper strategy to let'it out before congress passes the relief bill.

The program consists of several types of work divided in two classes: (1) The type which can be started immediately without red tape, and (2) the long-term blueprint stuff.

The first group is largely composed of rural electrification projects and grade crossing schemes. The bureau of roads worked up the grade crossing plans and the Hopkins group surveyed rural electrification.

The president is planning to get to work on this class of projects in northern regions this winter, despite all you have heard about waiting until fall.

The housing and heavier types of work, like dams, will not be pushed so rapidly by the White House. The report on these was prepared by the Public Works Administration and the national resources board.

SUCCESS The secret of Mr. Roosevelt's congressional success with his unprecedented $5,000,000,000 relief bill may best be explained by one work—pork.

No one could reasonably expect a congressman to see that much federal money dangling in front of him without his mouth watering.

Many house members will tell you off the record that they mused a while with their consciences before deciding. None of them liked the legislation. It was too tight. Most of them chose mused a while with their consciences before deciding. None of them liked the legislation. It was too tight. Most of them chose to say publicly that they overcame their objections for the sake of the president, but they will confess privately they might not have done it if there had been less money involved. Not a man in the house debate raised a question about the amount, except a few who admitted they would be glad to vote for even a larger appropriation. This factor will be an influence in the senate also, although senators are usually more subtle than house members.

CENSORSHIP The channelizing of news is spreading to other government departments. The day before the interior department orders slipped out, a confidential memo was sent around inside the federal trade commission. It cautioned employes to remember that information concerning the commission should be given out only through the regular publicity source.

The similarity of wording indicated that the New Deal may be embarked on a general move to tighten up all down the line. If this centralization of news sources continues there may eventually be only one Washington New Deal news source.

CONFESSION The federal housing administration broke down and confessed in a private memorandum sent to all state directors not long ago. It said not much could be expected from the home mortgage provision of its own housing act because 12 midwestern and western states already have enacted mortgage moratorium laws and other states are considering similar

The insurance companies and other mortgage investors cannot be expected to help mortgage financing in the face of moratoriums. Among other things the confidential memo said:

"Moratorium laws, such as we have had in many states during the depression, serve their purpose, but it must be recognized that in so far as they jeopardize the security of the lender, to that extent they increase the expense, if not make impossible the extension of credit in cases of future mortgage advances.'1

You will hear more about that later.

LULL Senatorial pipe men in the cloakrooms these winter afternoons are smoking themselves up about the quietude on the anti-New Deal front.

They say no one ever hears any more from Al Smith or the republican national committee, and only occasionally from the American Liberty League. Senator Carter Glass is the only consistent sharpshooter, and he is irregular. This is probably due to the fact that 1935 is an off year politically. (The republican oppositionists in the house spoke as loud and as hard against the relief bill as the rules permitted-but more than a third of them voted for it in Nine out of ten of the political wizards in both parties seem to believe firing would be useless now. They are awaiting results of the slow reorganization now being worked out by the president.

JAPANESE Even if the Japanese told their intentions in Chahar frankly, our officials would not believe them. Our people are convinced that the Japanese have again exaggerated the excuse of banditry to drive a few hundred Chinese soldiers away from the borders of Jehol. They suspect very strongly that the Japanese will continue to use this excuse until they dominate the region about Kalgan. That will cover one of the most important trade routes between Russia and China. It will make a ring of bayonets virtually around the northern side of Peiping. With these bayonets the Japanese may take their next slice of the China pie as soon as Chahar is devoured.

The Japanese showed their real intentions some time ago when they inadvertently published a map showing Chahar province within the boundaries of Manchukuo.

HUNGER Mr. Hitler also is supposed to be hungry again, having already swallowed the Saar. If our private diplomatic dispatches are right, he is looking at a luscious 940-mile piece of pie on the Baltic coast, called Memel. It was ceded to Lithuania in 1923. Hitler wants a plebiscite there. You will see him move openly soon to get it.

Strangely, Lithuania does not care and France and Poland are supposed to look the other way while Hitler takes Memel. The deal, at the bottom of it is yet to be developed.

LETTER The following letter was recently received at the White "The President,

It was signed by a fairly well-known businessman who apparently did not know that the law does not call for such information.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—
It is considered chic to go to the Hauptmann trial. Though I myself am not chic, and have never been invited to an Elsa Maxwell party. I hope I know what is being done. A mink coat, one of those Cossack hats, the word "divine" in your vocabulary, and there you are, if a woman, equipped complete for a day at Flemington. It's as easy as that. I know because, stepping out of the motor car in front of the Union hotel—on the snowy main street of the little Jersey town, I found all the Maxwell party countersigns and Church Ladies Busy.

If someone is to make money on the Hauptmann trial, it may as well be the ladies of the church, and it most emphatically is. The church lunch room is the swank place to eat, and don't make a mistake. For the duration of the Hauptmann trial that church lunch room is the Algonquin, the colony restaurant, the rainbow room of Flemington. Seventy-five cents and a very decent meal—clam chow-der, roast beef, boiled potatoes, stew-ed tomatoes, cole slaw, apple pie and coffee—with all the visiting celebrities thrown in. Real apple pie, too. Flaky, thrown in. Real apple pie, too. Firsty, juicy, hot.

You are served by the ladies of the church, and no nonsense. Neat, dowdy, no lipstick, no rouge; black dresses with a collar of home-made tatting fastened with a round brooch. Did you taste the pie? It's divine! Oh, well, diet tomorrow. Darling, is that Wilentz? Is that Reilly? Is that Winghall? Is that stomach-turning?

Wilents? Is that Reilly? Is that Winchell? Is that stomach-turning?

The courtroom. Through the side entrance, brushing past the fenders of the faded green-gray car which belongs to Bruno Hauptmann. You fight for your seat to which your newspaper card entitles you, only to be thrown out later, but you manage to sneak in again for a two-hour session with Hauptmann in the witness chair.

Long Covered Court. Courtrooms are no novelty to me. For four years—from 18 to 22—1 covered 9 o'clock police court for an afternoon metropolitan paper, as well afternoon metropolitan paper, as well as every big criminal story that came into the courts of the city. But never have I seen a courtroom so appalling as this one. High-ceilinged, white-walled, it was no longer a courtroom. It was a shambles. It was the 1935 Flemington version of the black hole of Calcutta. Planned to accommodate perhaps a hundred, it was jammed with what seemed at least a thousand. Seated, standing. least a thousand. Seated, standing, perched on window-sills, craning over balcony rails, peering through door-his face—not a smile, really, but the nervous contortion that you see on the lips of certain people on entering a crowded public place. He takes his seat in the witness chair.

I was astonished to see that this Bruno Hauptmann is a distinguished-looking man—distinguished and graceful. The line his body makes from shoulder to ankle as he sits there is fluid, graceful. A painter or a sculptor would be pleased with it. The face. Now, I've seen that before. I've seen a thing like that before. It is no color. It is, for that matter, no face. That is, it is no living face. It is not white, or gray or yellow. It is wax. That's it. It is the face of a corpse. Curiously enough, it has a sort of dignity which is the dignity of the dead. It has the deadness of the face in the glass box of that marble sepulchre in Red Square in Moscow. As dead as that, except for two small, sunken, live dark coals that smoulder dully in the caverus under the brows.

"Staring Like Vultures."

So there we sit and look and look,

So there we sit and look and look, hundreds and hundreds of us who have no business there, who should be turn-ed away from there. We sit and stare no business there, who should be turned away from there. We sit and stare hungrily like vultures perched on a tree, watching a living thing writhe yet a while. We are like the Sans Culottes, like the kuitting women watching the heads fall at the foot of the guillotine. We have got into the room through cajolery and bribery and trickery and lies and high ups and low downs. A good show. Most of them had been there day after day, day after day. I felt like a frosh at a senior brawl. Darling, were you here this morning? What did they do. Are you coming tomorrow? I'm lunching with Fisher. Do you want to meet the sheriff? Oh, he's sweet.

Once I saw a bull fight in Spain. It was a fine bull fight, all right. Plenty of big black bulls, and bright crimson blood and horses' entrails dragging in the dust. But the thing that drove me out of the amphitheater was the look on the faces of the men and women in the big dazzling circle. They were staring, staring, and their faces were not of wet—not circle. They were staring, staring, and their faces were sort of wet—not really wet, you know, but they had the appearance of being wet; and their eyes were bright-not really bright, but they shone oddly; and they kept licking their lips and there was an intent and fixed look in their eyes, and yet a little silly, too. It was a look of animal happiness and glutted satisfaction and a kind of dreadful passion. It made me sick and it made me mad as a hornet, and I got up and left. And here it was again, that look, in the prim little courthouse on a snowy day in Flemington, N. J. It's a big world, after all.

Would Bar Public.

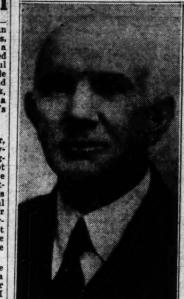

Would Bar Public.

I should like to say, as a taxpayer, and a human being, and an old busybody, that that courtroom in Flemington, N. J., should be emptied and kept emptied, of all except the judge, the jury, the lawyers, witnesses, reporters, special writers and such people as are definitely connected with the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. For the jammed siles, the crowded corter is merely siles. the jammed aisles, the crowded cor-ridors, the noise, the buzz, the idiot laughter, the revolting faces of those of us who are watching this trial are an affront to civilization.

Silver Anniversary Organ Recital Given by Miss Eda Bartholomew

A significant event of the current musical season was the silver anniversary organ recital of Eda Bartholomew at St. Mark Methodist church Sunday afternoon, celebrating the 25 years of service of this distinguished musician at St. Mark. A large andience of admirers of Miss Bartholomew and her musicianship gathered to employ a program that was well arranged and finely contrasted. The Atlanta Music Club sponsored the recital in appreciation of Miss Bartholomew as a valued member of the club, and the Georgia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, of which Miss Bartholomew are a valued members, attended in a body.

Miss Bartholomew was assisted in this memorable program by a group of well known artists: Mrs. James Richardson, sopprano; Lillian Bennett, contralto: T. Stanley Perry, tenor; Edward A. Werner, bass; Senta Mueller, violinist: Margie Griffith, harpist, and Lillian Gilbreath, pianist.

Two of the numbers appearing on the program, and receiving unlimited appreciation for their beauty of composition, were composed by C. W. Dieckmann, outstanding organist and composer, and member of the music faculty of Agnes Scott College in Decatur. The manuscript of these compositions is dedicated to Miss Bartholomew. The first, an organ solo, opening the program, "Allegro-Scher-MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

WOMAN ADMITS ROLE

Burned by Gasoline,

IN BUTCHERY MYSTERY
LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 27.—(P)—
County Attorney Jack Deavours announced late today that Ouida Keeton, 30-year-old Laurel woman, had admitted to officers that she "carried a pair of human legs, which had been hacked from the torso of a white woman and wrapped in sugar sacks, to the lonely spot on a woodland lane where they were found by a negro hunter a week ago.

Deavours also quoted the woman as expressing the belief her mother, Mrs. Daisy Keeton, with whom she lived and who has been missing from her home here for a week, was dead. He also declared that Miss Keeton gave no explanation of her alleged action, did not reveal where she obtained the legs, why she took them to the woods, or whose legs they were.

There are common varieties that everybody recognizes. One talks about himself habitually. It isn't important to him what he is saying so long as he can punctuate with I, me and mine. Sometimes he puts himself in a good light, sometimes in a bad light, but he consistently keeps the spotlight on himself. The second is the shameless braggart who boasts about himself and his possessions. Wife, children, employes, business success, what he has done and what he is going to do make up his conversation. The third type is close kin to him but good taste softens his boasting. He inserts apologetic clauses such as "If I do say this myself," or "I don't tell you this because he is my son but because it happens to be the truth."

The other egotists are not so simply caught. One is the person who never pays himself an out and out compliment but whenever you see him he quotes someone who has patted him on the back or handed him a large piece of approval. He explains that although he took the sweet with a grain of salt he appreciated the estimate. The listener must step right up, tell him all is deserved and not half the truth yet spoken.

Another has a passion for saying derogatory things about himself. There is no ugly trait to which he doesn't lay claim and no mistake in judgment that he hasn't made. He will tell you that everything he has ever done was wrong, yet that he can never learn anything by his disastrous experiences. He hasn't any courage; he drifts with the tide and takes what comes, which is generally fatal. He runs his stock down, down until somebody takes pity on him and makes the effort to raise it.

Don't let the chronic complainer fool you. Having no special distinction, nothing of general interest to contribute, that person resorts to complaints. The complaining egotist is generally a woman. The state of her health is a prime favorite subject for complaint, the way her husband mistreats her, the trouble the children cause her, the inconsideration of her friends and her martyred existence. Take the complaints out of her conversation and nothing is left but a handful of chaff.

The professional apologizer is a type less quickly recognized as an egotist. The apology is an artful ruse to indicate that she is better than she appears, that she can dress better, keep house better and be more entertaining than she is at the moment of the apology. She sweeps into the room, takes in the costume of those present and instantly begins to explain why she is dressed as she is. Or, if she is entertaining, she apologizes for the dirt in her house, the flowers in the vases, her husband's preoccupation and her children's manners.

rnment urgently needs ammunition to naintain itself and to protect life and property evening in the unsatisactory manner it is now protected."

Oil Situation Acute.

The fourflusher is also likely to lead you off but she is an egotist none the less. She raises an eyebrow in criticism but never utters it. She adverts to books she hasn't read beyond the reviews that have appeared in the propers. She speaks of "my the state of the propers of the state of the propers of the state of the propers of the state of the Mexican decision to refuse further drilling licenses to American companies which did not meet strict regulations that many American concerns could not or did not conform to.

He succumbed at a hospital late last night to a hemorrhage, resulting from a combination of ailments. He had been ill for several months but his condition was not regarded as serious until Friday.

A daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ludlow W. Stevens, were at his bedside when he died.

Gould was one of seven children of George J. Gould and his first wife, Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould. It was the interest of the son of Jay Gould in the ancient game of court tennis that inspired the grandson to become a champion.

When he was 17, in 1906, Gould won the American court championship after defeating a formidable field of challengers, and a year later won the world title.

An Additional line of cars whose quality and beauty make the price phenomenal

A short time ago, Pontiac announced a new six and an improved eight. And America gave them a truly royal welcome. Today Pontiac presents an addition to the Pontiac family-the Standard Six line-even lower in price and offering many of the features that the 1935 De Luxe Six and Improved Eight introduced with such sensational success. All models have the same speedlined styling that gained Pontiac the name of the most beautiful thing on wheels. The bodies are the same solid steel "Turret-Top" Bodies by Fisher. The brakes are the same-big hydraulics, triple-sealed against dirt and moisture.

The rest of the chassis, too, is sealed-completely barring water and dust from vital parts. The new ride, the happy result of stabilized, synchronized springing, is every bit as gentle and comfortable as you could ask for. The engine, with its silver-alloy bearings, provides dependable performance so smooth and lively that you will doubt it is a six. And, best of all, it operates with an economy of gasoline and oil that will literally amaze anyone who has had experience with other low-priced cars! Come in today and see these great new Pontiacs. A look, a ride and you'll decide you simply can't do better. PONTIAC MOTOR COMPANY, PONTIAC, MICHIGAN. Dicision of General Motors

Annual Greetings Sent Atlanta Doctors Recall Days in France

By Sally Forth.

FROM across the sea prominent Atlantans have received their yearly greetings from Madame Henri Raguin, who served so nobly with the Emory unit during the World War in France. As an assurance of her remembrance of the friendship made with the Atlanta doctors and nurses during those terrible war-stricken days, this beloved French woman sends an annual message to many in which she expresses good wishes for their health and happiness.

Recalling those never-to-be-forgotten days, spoken of so seldom those who suffered the most, one well-known Atlanta surgeon tells of Madam Raguin's invaluable services to the Emory unit. She volunteered her service following the loss of her only son in the beginning of the conflict. So anxious was the grief-stricken French mother to render comfort and make the pain less for other wounded soldiers that she went to Paris and for several months she took an intensive course in the Carrel-Dakin technic of dressing

It was after this that she joined the Emory unit hospital sta-tioned at Blois, France. She spent countless long, weary days from early dawn until late at at night dressing wounds of allied soldiers brought in hourly to the hospital from the front. So perfect was her technic in this delicate and arduous work that, according to Atlanta friends, many American disabled soldiers owe their lives to the tireless efforts of this French woman.

A few years after the war Madame Raguin visited the United States and spent several days in Atlanta with friends who were attached to the Emory unit. She was entertained by leading At-lanta physicians and their wives, who will never cease to be grate-ful to her for the magnificent aid given them during those dark days in France. Those who met Madame Raguin when she was here recall the handsome grayhaired lady whose gratitude to the American soldiers in behalf of her beloved France was revealed in her sympathetic and beaming countenance.

POPULAR Atlanta belle has A POPULAR Atlanta bene has been decidedly "up against it" for the past week. For upon her pretty shoulders has devolved the duty of making a tremendous decision-one that will determine her future life.

It seems that the time has arrived when she must choose between two ardent admirers, for both have declared themselves unable to go further without definite encouragement. One is a handsome young army aviator, who, like young Lochinvar, has come out of the west. The other, equally handsome, wears the insignia of Uncle Sam's infantry and is on duty at the local army post. Both are all that could be desired in personal charm, ap-pearance, background, ability and ambition. Both are graduates of West Point and both have definitely established positions in official and civilian life. Another thing they have in common is their undying devotion to the lovely Atlantan, an only daughter, who is as sweetly disposed as she is beautiful.

Sally has not had the privilege of seeing the local swain since his rival flew into town and laid siege to the lady's heart. But intuition tells her that should your path cross his, provided you have guessed his identity, you can easily tell by his expression and demeanor whether the aviation or the infantry branch of the service has been chosen.

SALLY, ensconced on the street Car out Peachtree way, was attracted by a soft, drawling iliary of the Procathedral of St. voice from the seat behind. Affection and admiration fairly dripped from her tones.

"Darling, darling, are you scared?" she queried affectionately, accompanied by a soft shifting of positions. "Oh, my precious." ever so faintly, "I shifting of positions. "Oh, my precious," ever so faintly, "I adore you," accompanied by caressing pats.

Sally, ever on the alert for romance, turned in her seat.

There sat a fat lady caressing a smug little Pekingese.

At the northern, or northwestern end of the Red sea is the city of Suez. It is the home of more than 40,000 persons, and serves as a coal-ing station for seagoing vessels; but its chief fame comes from the fact that it is located at one end of a great

Map of Suez canal from Port Said Bitter lakes.

If it were not for the Suez canal, goods could not be carried from Europe to Asia by an all-water route without a much longer trip. A voyage would need to be all the way around southern Africa; or across the Atlantic, through the Panama canal, and across the Pacific.

The Suez canal was built almost half a century before the Panama canal. In a sense, it took the place of a canal which existed thousands of years ago—tack in the time of ancient Egypt.

The kings of olden Egypt ordered a waterway to be cut from a branch of the Nile river to the Red sea; and through the labors of great arries of workers, it was done.

The old waterway was blocked from time to time because mud was dumped into it during floods of the Nile river; but repairs were made, and the canal seems to have been of service for a long time.

The present canal runs through Egypt, from Port Said on the north to Suez on the south. The total length is about 100 miles, but much of its course is through lakes. Dredging had to be done to deepen the lakes. Millions of cubic yards of mud and sand were taken up in the part of the chanel which ran through Lake Menzala.

of the chanel which ran through Lake Menzala.

The famous dreamer and engineer, Ferdinand de Lesseps, was the moving spirit in bringing about the canal. He spent years in making plans and taising money. At last, in 1859, the "first snadeful of sand" was turned. Work went on for ten years, and then there was a grand opening. Sixty-eight vessels passed through the canal, forming a kind of parade.

Most of the money for the canal was raised in France; but the British government later purchased almost half of the stock. The tonnace charge has brought Great British about ten times as much money as the government naid for the stock.

The tall men who "dunk" the ball into the basket would also lose their little trick with the baskets higher.

Allen also would permit free throws to be made in the end zone where they occur. Instead of parading foolishly to the other end provided the man fouled was a member of the team attacking the other basket.

He would have all jump balls taken to one of three spots, the center or the two foul lines and there would be six-foot rings to prevent crowding and more fouling.

He would leave the ten-foot baskets to high schools just as they have the 12-pound weight instead of the 16 used in college.

He's tried it out in experimental games and it works. They sound good to me. I do not care a great deal about basketball but Phog Allen makes it sound interesting.

THE FIRST COACH.

When Allen was here he told the story of the first basketball game. It was played in 1891. Alonzo Stagg played on one team and kept running with the ball-he having been an end at Yale in football.

But Allen's better story was of Dr. Naismith, some

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 27.—
The valiant efforts of interested sportsmen to apply the pulmoter to the Southeastern league, formerly one of the fastest of the Class B circuits, appeared successful today when six cities—Macon and Columbus in Georgia, Selma, Mobile and Gadsden in Alabama, and Pensacola, Fla.—were formally initiated as members. Invitations or challenges rather, to Montgomery and Anniston. Ala., were posted in an effort to induce these two cities to come into the folid. making it an eight-club circuit. They were given until February 2 to post forfeits of $2,000 in guarantee of good faith.

Montgomery, chosen for the site of the meeting, seemed to be the chief cause for worry. For although the city was represented by a trio of citi-zena, no definite assurance of its en-trance was made. The St. Louis Car-dinals were supposed to support Mont-zomery's entrance, but officials of that organization invited, including Branch Rickey, were conspicuous by their absence.

OPEN APRIL 23.

The league, idle since 1932, however, seems fairly certain to function, at least as a six-club circuit, and the opening date was set for April 23—one week after the Southern league opens to run for the duration of four months. They would like to have Montgomery to come in since the old Confederate capital is recognized as the "hub" of the league.

It was announced that officers will be elected and a constitution and by-laws drafted at the meeting next Saturday. The league's president is expected to be selected from Roy Williams, the popular Macon druggist and a well-grounded baseball man; Maurice Block, the affable sportsman from Selma. Ala., and J. Walter Morrisorganizer for the National Baseball Association, who helped preside at the meeting today.

The writer, who represented The Constitution, along with Earl Mann who represented the Atlanta basebal club, was one of a dozen or so speakers called upon by the Hon. Mr. Bloch, who was the chief presidinofficer, to speak in the interest of the league in a sort of "get-together" rally held on the second floor of the Hotel Whitley before the executive session was commenced.

The meeting—the second held in the interest of returning baseball to the section which had it for so long then lost it—was well attended.

ENGEL PRESENT.

ENGEL PRESENT. ENGEL PRESENT.

There were around a score of newspapermen present from all over Alabama and the Southern league was well represented by Joe Engel, the incomparable impressario of the Chattanooga club who will back the Selma club; Jimmy Hamilton, of Nashville, interested in Columbus; Billy West, of Birmingham, and Earl Mann of Atlanta.

LONG DERATE After four hours of debate, John L. Morris, the energetic young man-ager of the Macon Chamber of Com-merce, highly instrumental in helping to reorganize the league, came out and made the announcement. Morris, who brought with him a check for $2,800 posted by Macon citizens as a guarantee of that city's entry, was chosen to make the announcement for the league that a sixclub circuit had been definitely formed and that there was prospects for eight clubs.

Garden Calls Jack Dempsey To Save Card

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(UP)—Madison Square Garden today called upon Jack Dempsey to act as referee in Friday night's heavyweight bout between Art Lasky and James J. Braddock to prevent it from being a financial "flop" as an aftermath of last week's Dundee-Risko decision flasco.

Realizing that the epidemic of bad ecisions at the Garden had so in-ensed the New York boxing fans that it would take a ten-ton truck to drag them into the punch emporium, Col-onel John R. Kilpatrick, Garden pres-ident, appealed to Dempsey as the only possible savior of the match.

GOES TO CANTON AND P. W. JONES

Pyron Boys Have Long Haul as Per Pre-Shoot Agreement.

By Jack Troy.

By Jack Troy.

It was a great bargain. Ed and Charles Pyron had agreed to furnish the coal for the West End Gun Club's first annual ton-of-coal shoot and deliver it to the winners—all at a figure very agreeable to all concerned.

Well, the bargain sticks, And Ed and Charles Pyron, owners of the Walnut Coal Company, today will make arrangements to haul a ton of coal all the way to Canton, Ga., and the residence of P. W. Jones, a winner.

P. W. Jones, a relative of Bobby, who is recognized as somewhat of a winner himself. led the West End shooters yesterday with a score of 49 1-3. The fraction is the result of the club's new handicapping system.

WINS BY FRACTION.

And to say that Jones won by a fraction is stating it correctly. Little Luther McDonald, who finished in the runner-up position, had a score of 49. He also won a ton of coal.

Rube Jones, of Canton, came within a fraction of tieing McDonald. His score of 48 2-3 gave him third place. It was the first time an out-oftown shooter had come along in many months to take the top prize. And the victory was well deserved.

Other leading scores included Jack Tway, Ralph Minehan and Ed Garlington, 48 1-3; Jack Gray, T. C. Mayo, C. R. Pyron and C. L. Davis, 148; Al Frese Sr., and Ralph Zachry, 47 2-3; Al Frese Jr., 47 1-2; Tom Parsons, E. D. Smith, A. G. Smith and H. L. White, 47; E. B. Pyron and I. B. Duke, 46 2-3; Charles Tway and C. L. BEATS NELSON.

He eliminated Byron Nelson, the Texarkana, Texas, boy who jumped into prominence yesterday by beating Lawson Little, by the one-sided count of 6 and 4. Nelson's play was in direct contrast to his great shotmaking in defeating Little, the British and American amateur champion.

Against McSpaden, the putting of Nelson was below standard. He simply could not gauge his strokes on the greens. McSpaden, on the other hand, clung to par figures for the Presidio Club course, a 72-stroke layout.

The Kansan continued his assault on par in the semi-final round to defeat Ky Laffoon, of Chicago, 3 and 1. He took a two up lead on Laffoon at the ninth and increased it to three up on the seventh with a par 4, Laffoon conceding after using that many strokes and still having a putt left.

Cooper, veteran of the golfing wars and always ranked as a stiff competitor, defeated John Revolta, of Milwaukee, 2 and 1, in the quarter-finals and edged out Jimmy Thomson, of Long Beach, one up in the next to the last round.

STERN BATTLE.

Against Revolta, the Chicagoan took a one lead at the ninth and increased it to three up at the fourteenth. His battle with Thomson was a sterner affair. Thomson took a one up lead at the ninth with a par 36.

Cooper's comeback on the second nine saw him square the match on the tenth and go into the lead on the next hole. He remained in front from then on. They halved the last four holes, Thomson missing a five-foot putt on the eighteenth to enable his given to coast out for the win.

WILL CELEBRATE TENTH BIRTHDAY

Real Anniversary 'Party' Slated To Be Held During February.

Plans are now being formulated for a celebration to mark the tenth birthday anniversary of the Southern Garment Company, leading stylists of the south. The celebration will last the entire month of February, and a special feature will be a showing of new spring styles.

"Our customers are more than customers to us," said B. H. Bach, president of Southern Garment Company, "they are our friends, too. It is to their good will and co-operation that we owe our marked success of the last ten years. We are taking the opportunity through our birthday celebration event to show our appreciation to each and every one of them, and what is more, to make them glad that there ever was a Southern Garment Company."

there ever was a Southern Garment Company."

Looking toward their spring showing birthday party, Southern Garment Company buyers are now combing the markets in order to bring to the buyers of the south everything that is smartest and best in new ready-towear. In addition, Mr. Bach himself has just returned from New York, where he made a tour of the markets and spent much time in personal selection.

The service offered to dealers in the south by Southern Garment Company is unique in some respects. Located at 110-112-114 Mitchell street, S. W., lits spacious showrooms offer every convenience of selection to the buyers of coats. suits and dresses. There are thousands of styles from which to choose, and since new garments are received daily from eastern markets, the southern dealer who buys from Southern Garment Company receives it he added advantage of time saved and shipping costs saved, to say nothing of the saving effected by the elimination of expensive trips to New York.

Still another advantage which Southern Garment Company has to offer over the New York market is the fact that when the buyer visits New York he must accept what the manufacturer is making at the time; whereas in buying from Southern Garment Company the garments which are personally selected are the exact garments shipped to the purchaser.

Concerning the matter of shipping, Southern Garment Company specializes in quick delivery of either mail events. The service offered to dealers in the and unusually low cash prices are available.

Unusual savings on automobile equipment, supplies and accessories are available through the Economy Auto Store, at Whitehall and Mitchell streets, due, according to E. S. Walkley, president, to the group buying plan upon which its operation is based.

The Economy Auto Store here, Mr. Walkley points out, is one of a group operating through the state, organized and directed by local men of long standing in the business field of Atlanta.

A complete line of auto accessories, supplies, parts, tires and batteries of supplies.

The Economy Auto Store is affiliated with the group buying and selling organization of the Goodrich Rubber Company, a factor which in itself increases its buying power, passing savings along to the buyer. This connection enables the Economy Auto Stores to offer to automobile

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 115

When the gorilla god cried that every avenue of escape was cut off, Tarzan shrugged and looked over the parapet. Twenty feet below was the far to jump, and flames were shooting up the side. Still, there was a bare chance.

Tarzan tested one of the merlons of the battle-mented parapet. Finding it strong, he looped his rope about it. At his side stood The Maker, watching, trembling. "Oh, save me, too!" he begged pitifully. Tarzan smiled. "Save you? So that you can kill me and eat me later?"

"Forgive me that," the monster pleaded. "I was "Forgive me that," the monster possible mad to regain my human form. But save me and I will give you wealth beyond your dreams—diamonds by the handsful!" "I care nothing for your diamonds," Tarzan answered, "but I will are condition." try to save you on one condition

"What is that?" The Maker asked eagerly. you will help me save the girl—if she still lives," the ape-man replied. "I promise; but hurry—soon it may be too late." Tarzan looked down upon the flames leaping toward them. "Perhaps it is already too late!" he said.

Of It NO NEED to hunt for additional signers. No mortgaging of your furniture or auto. No other unpleasant restrictions such as salary assignments, etc. Through this new and modern method.

YOU JUST SIGN A PLAIN NOTE

THE only requirements are a sufficient income and a fair credit rating. Hundreds have found out (to their surprise) that they can get the cash they need in a simple, dignified, businesalike way on their OWN.

ALL OF this at no extra cost; our low interest rates prevail. No advance deductions; you re-ceive full amount and you only pay interest for actual time money is used. The MASTER

-DAILY SHORT STORY-

Barney Was Perfectly Average in Appearance, and Police Found It Hard To Identify Him. BY CARL LINDSAY SORENSEN.

"Colored designs appeared."

"Sure," continued the officer, "every police car in th' city was radioed to be on the lookout for you. You look like you don't believe it. Here. Take a look."

Barney entered the store. The clerk was busy with a woman customer. Barney swaffered himself to be led to a polished showcase where he could see his image. It was true. A huge black ring encircled his right eye. No wonder they had caught him. Now he knew why the people in the street car had looked at him so curiously. Then he saw it. He remembered and he priced himself with the kaleidoscope on the lookout for you. You look is look."

Barney suffered himself to be led to a polished showcase where he could see his image. It was true. A huge black ring encircled his right eye. No whome they had caught him. Now he knew why the people in the street car had looked at him so curiously.

Then he saw it. He remembered and he priced himself to be led to a polished showcase where he could see his image. It was true. A huge black ring encircled his right eye. No when we want to be not he lookout for you. You look is look."

Barney suffered himself to be led to a polished showcase where he could see his image. It was true. A huge black ring encircled his right eye. No when we want to be not he lookout for you. You look is look."

Barney suffered himself to be led to see his image. It was true. A huge black ring encircled his right eye. No when why the people in the street car had looked at him so curiously.

"That's the man," said the store-keeper positively.

"Listen you guys," cried Barney.

"You got me. O. K. New I'm askin' you. How did you find me?"

"Easy," said one of the policemen. "The gentleman here called the cops and reported that he had been held up by a guy of medium size, wearing a dark blue suit, a gray felt hat, and with a big black ring around one eye!"

By MIGNON.

For a feeling of sheer luxury, nothing can compare with a warm bath, then afterwards a thorough dousing of the body with a good, delicate tollet water, and then a dusting with a fine bath powder. This process somehow erases the cares of the day especially if you are a working woman. And if you are a goer-abouter, and usually are a bit short on sleep, there isn't anything comparable to this restful treatment.

In her busy bustling way, going about her household duties, Mammy cuts a gay figure on these dish towels. And there are seven of them—one for each day of the week. At the same time she adds such delightful decoration to the kitchen that she is really quite irreaistible. Just cross stitch with a touch of running and outline stitch go to make up these gay motifs. Do them all in one color or in a variety of colors—you'll enjoy yourself thoroughly while doing them—and add a delightful touch to your kitchen.
